Society Flutters to War's Music

By MARGARET WADE.

WITH the call to colors flashing all over Europe and the crash of battle already echoing along the Danube, the ordinary diversions of society assume their proper proportion. Costume dinners and floral balls are not as important items of news today as a week ago, yet even in war-driven shadowed countries and with battlefields close at hand society has never been known to abandon its diversions entirely. It may be that history is about to repeat itself as when fair women and brave men of many nations danced and supped while the guns of Waterloo were calling, but that famous ball of a century ago came at the close of a long campaign when the world had hardened to the sight of death, destruction, and untold suffering.

Cowes' week opening tomorrow will be shorn of much of its brilliancy, if not entirely eliminated from the summer calendar of all the sport-loving aristocracy of Europe. Prince Henry, of Prussia, aboard the Meteor, always remembered at the royal yacht for which the former Miss Alice Roosevelt was sponsor, instead of being the central figure in a really wonderful international gathering at the Isle of Wight, is, according to cable dispatches at St. Petersburg, on the gravest diplomatic mission of his life, trying to stay the hand of his imperial brother-in-law, the Czar.

The ill wind that blows no good, will undoubtedly be shown in the increased patronage of American resorts in the next six weeks, as hundreds of men and women, chiefly women, who had booked passage for Europe are now thankful to stay at home. Furthermore, even this early in the day, these same Europe-loving travelers are canceling orders for their usual supply of Paris gowns and millinery. A straw in the wind, but significant of greater losses to come in the gay republic which gains millions and millions of francs from the vanity and extravagance of American women.

The same cable that tells of fighting at Sarajevo, tells under another heading, but with the same date line, that Mme. Paquin insists skirts shall be wider with a flare at the hem, and that the house of Premet is sending basqued bodices by the hundred. With clothes taking on an importance like this, even a general European war cannot rob Paris of her pre-eminence in the world of fashion.

While extending sympathy to all Europe, or such parts of it as actually need sympathy, every good American gives thanks this Sunday morning for the deliverance of the United States from the war that threatened our Southern border even one month ago. To our own Chief Executive and his policy, rarely understood and frequently misrepresented, society in its broadest sense appears to owe unwavering loyalty and sincere gratitude.

The latest form in which Dame Fashion is exercising her prerogative of change at short notice, would appear to be in the matter of weddings. The old-fashioned idea that the bride who was not led to the altar in June would, as a matter of course, defer this ceremony until September, no longer holds good in fashionable circles where the midsummer wedding has come to be as much a part of the season as the costume ball or the formal dinner party.

For this as for many other changes in American social life there is a reason, and Dame Fashion is not such an arbitrary or fickle power as her enemies are fond of proclaiming. The August weddings, like those of June and early September, usually take place in the country and at a time permitting a longer honeymoon than falls to the share of the average American bridegroom, who, however well off in worldly goods, is rarely the master of his time for more than thirty days in a year. The advantages of an August wedding also include the happy assurance to the bride that her tressor will be quite up to the minute when she returns to town in October, for every one knows autumn fashions are born in May, while the very choicest gowns and hats of a June tressor are more than likely to be superseded by creations of a totally different kind by October. Possibly the greatest advantage of all attending an August wedding date, is the fact that the list of guests is necessarily small, and admits of a greater choice than is possible with a city wedding list to be considered and a city church the scene of the ceremony. As a rule only the nearest and most intimate friends are now invited to the fashionable weddings of the summer, which is certainly a change for the better from any point of view.

The marriage of Mr. Clarence L. Hay, of Washington, to Miss Alice Appleton, of New York, at Ipswich, Mass., next Wednesday is of particular interest to Washington, not only on account of this being the home city of the bridegroom, who is the youngest and only living son of the late Hon. John Hay, but because it is believed he and his bride will make their future home in the famous mansion on Sixteenth street and Lafayette square, where for nearly thirty years the late Secretary of State and Mrs. Hay were dominating figures in the social life not only of Washington, but of America.

The wedding will take place in the Ascension Memorial Church at Ipswich, with Rev. Roland Cotton Smith, D.D., rector of St. John's, Washington, to officiate. A reception at "Appleton Farms," the summer home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Appleton, will follow. The recent death of the bridegroom's mother is an added reason for the curtailing of the guests at this ceremony and reception, as well as for the omission of all formal entertaining in honor of the attractive young bride-to-be by her friends on the North Shore. Mrs. Hay's sisters are Mrs. Payne Whitney and Mrs. James W. Wadsworth, both of New York.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Harvey, daughter of Col. and Mrs. George Harvey, of New York, to Lieut. Marcellus Thompson, U. S. A., on Wednesday, August 12, at the summer home of the bride's parents, at Deal, N. J., is another of the season's weddings particularly interesting to Washington, where bride and bridegroom are both well known and well liked. Lieut. Thompson will have a long line of brother officers as ushers, while our own Miss Genevieve Clark will lead the bride's attendants.

Also of interest to many friends of the bride and her family will be the marriage of Miss Lucy Bignow Dodge, granddaughter of that famous diplomat and statesman, the late John Biglow, to Mr. Walter T. Rosen, of New York, which is to take place at St. Anne's Church, Quebec, on Tuesday, August 11. The church ceremony will be followed by a breakfast at the summer home of the bride's stepfather, Hon. Lionel Guest, and Mrs. Guest, on the Isle de St. Giles, in the St. Lawrence River. Both Mrs. Guest and her young daughter have been frequent visitors to Washington, where the latter in her debutant season was extensively entertained by the late Mrs. Levi Z. Leiter.

Pages Return to Rome

The Ambassador to Italy and Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page, who were to have sailed for New York yesterday from Liverpool, have returned to Rome, where, according to the instructions to all envoys, the ambassador will remain at the head of his embassy during the present unsettled condition of European affairs. Mr. Page's staff includes Peter A. Jay, of Newport, and Norval Richardson, of Mississippi, as first and second secretaries, respectively, and Col. George M. Dunn and Lieut. Commander Russell Train as military and naval attaches. Both Col. Dunn and Lieut. Commander Train are residents of Washington. The naval attaché, who only reached his post a few weeks ago, is assigned to both Rome and Vienna.

The Ambassador to Germany and Mrs. James W. Gerard, who were to have sailed for New York August 12, have canceled all social engagements and have returned from Carlsbad to Berlin. At Rome, both the military and naval attaches at Berlin are Washingtonians, the former being Maj. George T. Langhorne and the latter Lieut. Commander Walter Gherard.

The embassy in Paris is practically without a chief, as Mr. Herrick, the retiring ambassador, is on the eve of returning to America, while his successor, Hon. William G. Sharp, has not yet sailed for his new post. The first secretary in Paris is Mr. Robert Wood, of New York. Maj. Spencer Cosby, U. S.

A late military aid to President Taft is the military attaché. The consul general is Mr. A. M. Thackara, formerly of Philadelphia. Mrs. Thackara, how-tionian, having been Miss Ellen Sherman, daughter of the late General of the Army.

Another member of the Sherman family literally on the firing line is Lieut. Sherman Miles, U. S. A., only son of Gen. Nelson A. Miles, who is military attaché at Bucharest.

At St. Petersburg the Embassy is in the care of Mr. Charles S. Wilson, of Portland, Me., the former Ambassador having returned several months ago while his successor, Mr. George Marry, of this city, has not yet sailed for his post.

The London Embassy, under Hon. Walter H. Page, of New York, has two officials on duty well known in Washington, in the capacity of military and naval attaches who are Col. George O. Squires and Lieut. Commander Powers Symington.

Mr. and Mrs. Medill McCormick have joined Mrs. Robert McCormick at the latter's Newport cottage for a visit of two weeks. They have chartered a yacht for that time and will make daily cruises. Later they will make a visit to Mrs. McCormick's mother, Mrs. Mark A. Hanna, at the latter's summer home on Mount Desert.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry St. G. Tucker have returned to "Col Alto," their home near Lexington, after a month spent in travel.

MISS G. LOUISE FAULKNER—The marriage of Miss Faulkner, who is now traveling in Europe, to Mr. S. J. O. Nealy, of Dublin, is announced to take place in that city Monday, August 10. Mr. Nealy and his bride propose returning to Washington to reside.

elling in their car through New England and other Eastern States. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Scharp, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., accompanied them to Lexington.

Lieut. Albert S. Tucker, U. S. A., is spending a short time with his father, H. St. G. Tucker, in Lexington, preparatory to assuming a new assignment of duty at Laredo, Tex.

Dinners at Chevy Chase

The Spanish Ambassador entertained a large dinner company at the Chevy Chase Club last evening. His guests afterwards joining in the regular weekly dance. Other dinner hosts to companies of eight to twelve guests were Col. Charles G. Treat, U. S. A.; Mrs. John Barry, More than 200 members of the club came in during the evening.

The Cuban Minister, who proposed passing the season at Newport, has deferred his departure and is making the Willard his home for the present.

The new Minister from Greece, Mr. A. Schlemm, will go to New York today to meet his wife and family on their arrival from Europe. The former charge d'affaires, M. Vouras, who has been the head of the legation for the last two years, will leave next week for Athens, where, after a leave of absence, he will be promoted to an important post in his home government.

The Minister to Denmark, Dr. Maurice Francis Egan, who has been seriously ill in this city since June, has left Providence Hospital and joined Mrs. Egan at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Elmer Murphy, in Eighteenth street. The Minister and Mrs. Egan hope to sail for Copenhagen August 11, when it is expected the former will be able to resume his duties.

M. Komstantin von Maskevich, first secretary of the Austro-Hungarian Embassy, Count Lascio Chiraky, second secretary, and Count Anton de Sigary, who have been visiting in America for several months, sailed for home yesterday via England. These foreign visitors were all booked to sail on the Vaterland, but cheerfully changed to the Oceanic when the German ship was withdrawn.

The departure of M. Maskevich and Count Chiraky will leave the Austro-Hungarian Embassy with only a counselor of embassy, as his staff has already been depleted by departures for Europe. Commander Maximilian Burstin, naval attaché, is still officially in Washington, but likely to be called home at any time.

The American Ambassador at Vienna and Mrs. Frederick C. Penfield, who were to have gone to Carlsbad yesterday for the month of August, have, of course, canceled their engagements, and will remain in Vienna. Both Mr. and Mrs. Penfield are well known in Washington. The latter, as Mrs. John Walker, lived here years ago, when her husband was a member of Congress, and later as a widow, and one of the richest women in America, passed several seasons here. Mr. Thomas Hinkley, of Washington, is secretary of embassy. Other Washingtonians in the war-surrounded city are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Denby, the former being consul general. Mrs. Robert Hinkley and Miss Gladys Hinkley, who passed the early summer in Vienna, left there some time ago for Carlsbad to remain through August.

Marletts on Tour

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lester Marlett, who have a large touring car, as well as a very attractive cottage at Ventnor, N. J., are making frequent week-end trips that extend to the various resorts of New York, Connecticut, and Pennsylvania.
